Proposed cycling lanes create divide

► City transit committee recommends council approve plan to install segregated bike lanes after marathon public consultation session ► Plan set for vote by full council Feb. 23

A city transit committee's recommendation Wednesday to install segregated bike lanes and wipe out parking on Laurier Street has some in Ottawa's business community fuming.

"This will provide the same type of surface disruption that light rail would have done," said Gerry LePage, executive director of the Bank St. Business Improvement Area. "There's going to be gridlock."

LePage said the recommendation exposes cyclists to danger and could expose the city to legal liability.

Alex deVries, vice-president of Citizens for Safe Cycling, applauded the decision.

"There's no perfect route. We're looking for a route that has the fewest problems and the highest chance of success and I think Laurier is it," deVries said.

OCC gets a taste of its menu

The new Ottawa Convention Centre doesn't open until April, but its executive chef offered a taste of things to come on Thursday.

Geoffrey Morden, an Ottawa native who most recently helmed the kitchen at the Chateau Laurier, whipped up a few sample dishes at the Westin Hotel, including grilled lamb rack poppicles with flamed Niagara pear and cranberry chutney and seared Digby scallops with white bean puree.

The OCC's 1,200 square-foot kitchen is capable of feeding 6,000 guests, doubling the capacity of the old convention centre.

Morden, who dealt with similar numbers at Alberta's Chateau Lake Louise, said the coming masses don't faze him.

"We have the right equipment to do it," he said. "I'm not going to say it's not intimidating, because we want every meal to go out perfectly. That's the challenge, but it's all about organization."

Morden said he's also modified the menu to offer only sustainable seafood, dropping the popular but endangered sea bass for black cod.

Aiming for 'victory' in battle over bytes

► Groups to go ahead with rally against usage-based billing ► 25GB monthly limit unrealistic: Professor

JOE LOFARO
OTTAWA@METRONEWS.CA

The federal government may have said that they will overturn a Canadian Radio and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC) decision to greenlight usage-based billing (UBB), but Shawn Pepin said it's not enough to cancel Saturday's rally.

"It's still not a total victory for people who have been fighting it," said Pepin. Yesterday he reminded the 700 people who signed up for the rally on Facebook that the fight is still on. Pepin will be watching closely as the CRTC reviews its decision on how companies like Bell Canada force independent ISPs to charge customers per byte

"The bigger question for me at this point is, 'why is there no other alternative?'" and cap their data usage.

"I hope that they don't come back with something that looks better on paper but really isn't much of a change in the end," Pepin said. University of Ottawa law professor, Michael Geist, said the UBB model might be more acceptable if Canada had a healthy, competitive market.

"The problem right now in Canada is that there are no other alternatives," he said. "We're virtually uniformly capped and that's a clear sign that the marketplace is not competitive."

► Shawn Pepin says that public pressure has forced the government to reconsider usage-based billing for Bell Canada, but the fight isn't over yet.

Safety features save driver

COLLISION. A driver who wrecked his car when he collided with the back end of a stopped OC Transpo bus early yesterday morning had only minor bumps and bruises thanks to his seatbelt and airbag.

Hydraulic jacks had to be used to push the dash away from the driver, so that he could be removed from the car.

The driver was taken to hospital but only as a precaution.

Rocks fly in Cairo, journalists beaten

► President says he wants to resign but fears chaos ► New looting, arson

Menacing gangs backing President Hosni Mubarak attacked journalists and human rights activists Thursday as Egypt's crisis took an ugly turn.

Protesters and regime supporters fought in a second day of rock-throwing battles at a central Cairo square while lawlessness spread around the city.

New looting and arson erupted.

Meanwhile, more trouble loomed as organizers called for protesters trying to topple the regime to fill every square in the huge capital on Friday.

The new vice-president, Omar Suleiman, fuelled anti-foreign sentiment by going on state television and blaming outsiders for fomenting unrest.

Mubarak himself said in an ABC television interview he's fed up and wants to resign. But he said he can't for fear the country will sink into chaos.

He said he's very unhappy about the two days of clashes in central Tahrir Square.

"I do not want to see Egyptians fighting each other," said Mubarak, 82.

Pro-government mobs beat foreign journalists with sticks and fists. The Committee to Protect Journalists said 24 reporters were detained in 24 hours, including representatives of The Washington Post and The New York Times.

Twenty-one journalists were assaulted, including two with Fox News.

One Greek journalist

was stabbed in the leg with a screwdriver, and a photographer was punched in the face, his equipment smashed.

The Arabic news network Al-Arabiya pleaded for the army to protect its journalists, and Al-Jazeera said four of its correspondents were attacked.

Yemen cities erupt with protests

Tens of thousands of protesters Thursday staged unprecedented demonstrations against Yemen's autocratic president, a key U.S. ally in battling Islamic militants.

Protesters rallied in seven towns and cities across Yemen, with chants of "Down, down, down with the regime!" and banners calling on the president to resign now.

In Sanaa, several thousand government supporters held a counter-rally, with banners warning the opposition is trying to destabilize Yemen.

Military helicopters hovered in some areas, and there was a heavy security presence around the Interior Ministry and the Central Bank.

President Ali Abdullah Saleh, in office for three decades, said Wednesday he would not seek re-election in 2013. But opposition groups say they are suspicious of his offer.

Slaughtered sled dogs called old, sick

The man at the centre of a slaughter of up to 100 sled dogs says half the animals put down were old, sick or "not adoptable."

Robert Fawcett and the company that bought his business, Outdoor Adventures, issued a statement in an effort to answer some of the questions hanging over the case that has grabbed headlines around the world.

The statement said Fawcett told Outdoor Adventures he estimated about 50 dogs would have to be euthanized.

"These dogs live to run and were not able to do so and would have had to be kept in cages with the result that they would have had very poor or virtually no quality of life," the statement said.

It's alleged the animals were dumped in a mass grave after business collapsed following the 2010 Winter Olympics.

WorkSafe BC documents indicate the dogs were shot and others had their throats slit.

Both the RCMP and the SPCA have been investigating.

A worker has been awarded compensation related to post-traumatic stress from the incident.

On Wednesday, Fawcett was removed from the board of directors of a group that sets voluntary guidelines for the industry.

"We're not assigning any guilt on him and we certainly don't have any more information than anyone else," Mush with Pride president Karen Ramstead said from Perryvale, Alta., where she runs a kennel for Siberian huskies.

"We just felt that our by-laws allowed for this if a board member was bringing unwanted attention to Mush with Pride, which is what we felt this situation was doing."

Answers?

- The joint statement from Robert Fawcett and the company doesn't refer to 100 dogs, only 50 it said needed to be put down.
- Fawcett was the general manager of Howling Dog Tours. Outdoor Adventures has said it took over full control of Howling Dog Tours last May, the month after the dogs were killed.
- WorkSafe BC documents suggest Howling Dog had 300 dogs and there was pressure to get rid of a third of them.

Carry-on rules eased

► Canada now in line with U.S., European standards for packed baggage ► Goal is to 'reduce hassles'

Small scissors and tools, such as eyeglass screwdrivers, are now permitted aboard planes, while restrictions on liquids, gels and aerosols remain the same.

There's a six-centimetre limit for these tools, excluding the handle. Knives of any length, including Swiss Army multi-tools, are still banned.

The changes announced Thursday are part of an effort to reduce hassles at airports, Transport Minister Chuck Strahl said at a news conference at Ottawa's Macdonald-Cartier airport. Other changes are in the works to speed up security screening.

"There will also be new dedicated lanes for families and those with special needs, with equipment specifically designed for big-

There will also be new lines for frequent travellers pre-approved under the Nexus card program.

The idea is to ensure security while increasing convenience for travellers, he said, noting that he recognizes the frustration generated by air security measures: "It's a process that's more tolerated than

The Transport Department noted in a news release that manicure scissors and miniature screwdrivers pose little threat in an era of reinforced cockpit doors and other routine security measures.

Other items still not permitted in checked baggage include firearms, box cutters or heavy tools, golf clubs, toys resembling weapons and lighters.

Regulations on carry-on items have shifted in response to attempts by terrorists to circumvent airport security. For example, Ottawa last fall banned

► A woman walks with her grandchildren past twisted roofing material strewn on the street in Tully, Australia, on Thursday, after Cyclone Yasi brought rain and winds gusting to 300 km/h.

Yasi brings terror to Australia

► Hundreds of houses destroyed ► Piles of drenched mattresses, twisted metal roofs strewn across lawns

First came the terrifying roar, then a violent bang like something had exploded. "We gotta go!" David Leger screamed to his father as one of the most powerful storms ever recorded in Australia tore the roof off their home, sucking the air up and out of the room like a vacuum.

Leger and his parents scrambled down the staircase, but the house shook violently, sending 83-year-old Francis Leger tumbling down the stairs. The family finally made it to a small room on the ground floor, where they rode out the ferocious storm that slammed into the already flood-ravaged Queensland state Thursday.

"We're just thankful," David Leger said later as he slogged across the drenched carpet of their ruined home, water pooling around his sandalled feet. "This is only material."

Residents and officials were amazed and relieved that no one was reported killed by the monstrous Cyclone Yasi, which roared across northern Queensland with winds up to 280 km/h. Tidal surges sent waves crashing ashore two blocks into seaside communities, several small towns directly under Yasi's eye were devastated and hundreds of millions of dol-

BLASTS HIT BUILDINGS IN TURKEY

Two separate explosions in an industrial district of the Turkish capital killed at least 12 people on Thursday and injured dozens of others, authorities said.

A powerful explosion collapsed two stories of a factory, leaving at least six people dead and injuring 34 others, Interior Minister Besir Atalay said. Hours later, another explosion shook a paint workshop in the same industrial zone, killing six more people, said Ankara's Mayor Melih Gokcek. The cause of the explosions was under investigation, authorities said.

Per-byte billing must go: Tories

The CRTC will delay implementing its controversial ruling on Internet billing practices while it reviews the decision which raised hackles in the online community.

But the Harper government says if the Canadian

Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission comes back with the same plan, they will be overruled.

Commission Chairman Konrad von Finckenstein told a House of Commons committee on Thursday that the introduction of usage-based billing for wholesale customers will be delayed for at least 60 days beyond the proposed March 1 start date.

This will give the regulator time to review the decision. THE CANADIAN PRESS

He's hungry for Charest to resign

A Quebec man is so eager to see Premier Jean Charest step down that he's going on a hunger strike.

Pablo Lugo Herrera, like many Quebecers, has been hoping there might be a public inquiry into allegations of rampant corruption in the construction industry.

When the premier refused to call one, he sent a letter urging Charest to resign. When the premier didn't respond to that letter, Herrera vowed to stop eating.

He began his tap-water-only diet on Wednesday morning.

Herrera, a 41-year-old Colombian immigrant who now lives in Joliette, Que., says he's fed up with watching a premier tarnish the democracy of the adopted province he loves.

OPP pay hike puts towns in tight spot

► Premier Dalton McGuinty says savings will have to be found from within.

► Liberals 'irresponsible' — they're demanding a pay freeze: Mayor

Municipalities that rely on the Ontario Provincial Police are in a tight spot after the governing Liberals handed the force a five per cent pay hike while demanding a wage freeze for public sector workers, critics said Thursday.

"I think it was very irresponsible for the government, when they're talking about wage freezes, to go and give a five per cent increase to the OPP," said Thunder Bay Mayor Keith Hobbs.

The move will have "huge ramifications" on smaller communities like Kenora and Atikokan, which rely on the OPP and are struggling to keep their budgets in line, he said.

It will also burden cities like Thunder Bay, because the local police force will likely ask for the same increase, Hobbs added.

You Can Restore Your Smile Easily With New White Fillings, Inlays & Onlays!

Recent advances in techniques and materials offer us as dentists, a variety of comfortable, affordable treatment alternatives to help you get the smile you've always wanted. These advances combine to make certain cosmetic and restorative procedures including white resin fillings, bonding and enamel shaping faster, more comfortable and more effective.

Today's restorative care centers around aesthetic and bonding technologies that not only look better, but last longer, seal better, and can actually strengthen the teeth. These procedures are all safe, conservative and can be tailored to your personal needs, resulting in dentistry that looks natural and wears longer.

If the visible portion of your teeth are darkened by silver/amalgam fillings you may be able to improve the look of your smile with composite (tooth coloured) fillings.

Some of today's composite resins have been specifically designed to better withstand the incredible forces people can exert when chewing on their back teeth. They can therefore be successfully placed in the back teeth as well as the front teeth.

Composite fillings bond to the tooth and can help support the remaining tooth structure, which may help to prevent breakage. Studies have shown that composite fillings can last for many years, however if the restoration is very large, a composite filling may not be appropriate. Composite or porcelain inlays are usually placed in back teeth when personal choice or aesthetics is a factor. An inlay restores normal tooth anatomy by filling in a cavity created by decay or trauma. Inlays are typically more conservative than crowns because they require removal of less tooth structure.

Inlays may not be suitable for everyone. For example, they should not be used in patients who develop cavities easily, especially between the teeth. It may not be in a patient's best interest to restore one proximal surface with an inlay, when there is a likelihood that another proximal surface may need restorative treatment at a later time.

An onlay, which is similar to an inlay but which extends to cover the entire chewing surface of the tooth, thereby protecting cusps from fracture, may be an attractive alternative. Like inlays, an onlay may be fabricated from porcelain, composite resin or gold. Inlays and/or onlays usually require two visits to the dentist, however, when it comes to strength and aesthetics the extra time and expense is well worth it.

If the appearance of your teeth is making smiling uncomfortable for you, schedule an appointment to come and see us soon. You'll be glad you did!

Yours for better dental health,

Poison plot targeted cook: Crown

▶ Former nanny pleads guilty to spiking food for sex-shop queen ▶ Court hears of hatred towards cook

A former nanny employed by the owner of a chain of British sex shops has admitted to spiking her boss's soup with wind-shield-washer fluid.

Allison Cox pleaded guilty on Thursday to one charge of administering poison to Jacqueline Gold "with intent to injure, aggrrieve or annoy." The Crown dropped two other charges of attempted poisoning with sugar and salt.

The hearing was the first time the Crown re-

The nanny had "some animosity ... towards the cook. She put (the poison) into the food to cause the cook to be questioned about it." RACHEL DAVIES, PROSECUTOR vealed a motive for the poisoning last October. Prosecutor Rachel Davies said Cox, 33, tampered with the food in an attempt to get the household's chef in trouble.

The plot unravelled after Gold criticized the cook about the odd-tasting food. The chef grew suspicious and removed the leftover broth from the garbage to investigate.

Cox will be sentenced on March 4. She is free on bail.

Gold is one of Britain's richest women, with a fortune estimated at $290 million.

Judge's son arrested in hot casino chip sting

The son of a Las Vegas judge faces felony charges in a brazen casino robbery in which a helmeted bandit brandished a gun at the craps table, grabbed $1.5 million in casino chips and sped off on a motorcycle.

Anthony M. Carleo, also known as Anthony M. Assad, 29, was arrested after allegedly trying to sell high-value chips to undercover police. The Las Vegas Review-Journal reports that he is the son of Las Vegas municipal court judge

George Assad.

The robbery took place on Dec. 14 at the Bellagio resort. Security-camera video of the heist was broadcast widely on television and the Internet.

Casino security experts said the thief's choice of booty was foolish, since casinos track chips, especially high-dollar chips. In December, Bellagio announced it was discontinuing its $25,000 chip and gamblers had until April 22 to redeem them.

Apple deems Sony e-book reader inapt

► Apple insists apps for iPhones, iPads allow customers to buy books from within the app

Apple Inc. has rejected Sony Corp.'s e-book reader app for the iPhone because it doesn't give people the choice to buy books without leaving the app for a website.

The high-profile rejection shows Apple tightening control both over the way apps work and the way money flows through them.

Apple keeps a close eye on the iPhone and iPad programs that outside developers submit for distribution in the iTunes store. Sony's Reader for iPhone app would have sent people to a website once they were ready to buy a book.

App-licable

Apple said this in-app clause was already part of the developer guidelines.

► "We are now requiring that if an app offers customers the ability to purchase books outside of the app, that the same option is also available to customers from within the app with in-app purchase," said spokeswoman Natalie Harrison.

Apple's insistence on an in-app purchase option can be seen as its way of ensuring that people using its gadgets get a familiar experience every time they make a purchase through an app. But such a move would prove less lucrative for companies such as Sony, because Apple takes a 30 per cent cut of revenue from in-app purchases.

In the past, Apple has not enforced this rule across the board. Amazon.com Inc.'s Kindle e-book reading apps for iPhone and iPad don't use in-app purchases, but rather send users to a website.

Sony protested what it calls a change in the way of enforcing the rules.

Ford recalls 280,000 U.S. trucks

280,000

Ford Motor Co. is recalling about 280,000 F-150 pickup trucks in the U.S. to fix a problem with the interior door handles that could lead to the doors opening in a crash.

Ford Motor Co. says it is recalling F-150s from the 2009 and 2010 model years built from Jan. 18, 2008, through Nov. 30, 2009.

The company says there have been no crashes tied to the problem.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration says on its website that a spring in the interior door handle could break, causing the door to fail to latch properly.

The government says if the truck was struck on the side, the door latch could open.

The recall is expected to begin around Feb. 14.

Rankin has applied to the OSC for a "variation or revocation" of the 2008 decision that also barred him from trading for 10 years and permanently banned him from working as officer or director of a securities firm or a publicly traded company.

A statement from the commission released Thursday did not explain whether Rankin will be asking for changes to part of the ruling when he appears at a hearing Feb. 17, or simply wants the whole thing overturned.

Rankin was cleared of all 10 insider trading criminal charges by a judge who criticized the OSC for settling with Duic, a former classmate of Rankin at Upper Canada College, a private, elite elementary and high school in midtown Toronto.

► Dan Savage

5 MINUTES WITH: DAN SAVAGE

Sex columnist Dan Savage braved Wednesday's snowstorm to speak at Carleton University about his It Gets Better video campaign for gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgendered teens.

Was there an It Gets Better contribution that really surprised or delighted you? I was very surprised when Barack Obama made one, but the top of my head exploded when the U.K.'s prime minister, David Cameron, made one. We're still waiting on Stephen Harper's.
What did it say to you when Cameron and Obama came onboard? It feels that we've reached a tipping point on gay issues. It does feel like we're reaching that point on these issues in the United States and Barack Obama's participation was evidence of that. He said in his video, looked directly into the camera addressing LGBT kids, and said, "There's nothing wrong with you." By implication, the president is saying there's something wrong with the people who are telling you there's something wrong with you, which for a lot of LGBT kids includes their own parents.

Have you heard about the radio ban in Canada on the Dire Straits song Money For Nothin'?

ing? Yeah, I did. I think it's completely ridiculous. That song is clearly a character talking, and it's, what, 30 years old? The damage is done, whatever damage that song could possibly do. And I love the word faggot. Me and all my faggot friends use the word faggot constantly.

I hear you yourself may be "on the MTV."

Well it hasn't happened yet. It's just a pilot shoot and a million pilots get shot and one or two things make it onto a network schedule. It got reported that MTV gave me a show and that's not true. They gave me a pilot, and they will then decide whether to demean themselves by giving me a show. I think a lot of what's on television is terrible, especially about sex, which is why I want to be on television talking about sex.

What do you think of Ottawa?

I went for a nice long walk today in the snow in my mesh-top tennis shoes and I didn't get soaking wet. Ottawa's lovely. I wish I had more time to spend here, but this is just a quick trip in and out. It's fun to be here for an extreme weather event. I hope I can get out of town tomorrow, though, because MTV needs me! ● STEVE COLLINS

Big money

Thanks to the titanic grosses from his 3-D smash Avatar, director James Cameron was Hollywood's top money-earner in 2010, according to Vanity Fair. The Kapuskasing, Ont.-born filmmaker raked in an estimated $257 million to land atop the magazine's list. The 56-year-old earned $253 million in revenue from Avatar (which excludes the $50 million he earned from the film in 2009) and $4 million for his older films. SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

This is no Avatar

- Richard Crouse and Mark Breslin debate the Cameron-produced Sanctum
- No-name actors don't deliver in the poorly-written film – but it is in 3-D

Richard Crouse: Mark, the early part of the year is supposed to be the worst movie going season, but so far it hasn't been so bad. But Sanctum is my first seatbelt movie of the year; a film so awful I thought I might need a seatbelt to keep me in my chair for the whole thing.

Mark Breslin: Oh, yeah? I'm a claustrophobe AND have a fear of water. Plus, I'm allergic to bad writing. So I squirmed through this as well. But let me say something good about the movie: the 3-D not only was technically superb, it enhanced the plot, what little there was. You must admit, it put you in the middle of the adventure.

RC: If you're allergic to bad writing then stay away.

Plot synopsis

► In this James Cameron-produced 3-D underground extravaganza, a group of underwater cave divers explore a cave system in Papua New Guinea. The dangerous mission becomes even more life-

The dialogue is so wooden I swear I saw woodpeckers circling the theatre. I'll admit the 3-D was OK, and some of the pictures were beautiful, but I couldn't help but think it wasn't enough to keep me interested. Don't you think, with some editing, it could have made a better National Geographic cave documentary than an adventure movie?

MB: Definitely. And one of the "characters" even references National Geographic!

threatening when a sudden storm floods the system. The only way out is a dangerous route downward toward the ocean. The question is: How many will survive?

► Ratings:
Richard's: No globes
Mark's: ●

But then we wouldn't be treated to the stellar "acting" of the no-name cast. Richard, do you mean you weren't moved to tears by the way the son learns to love his irascible but courageous dad? Why, I haven't seen that in a movie in ... weeks!

RC: The father and son dynamic doesn't ring true, but then again, very little in this movie does. Scenes that should be tension-filled are just tedious and how is it that someone, who we're told has "broken every bone in their body," is able to tightly grab the first character that walks by? Am I being too picky?

MB: No, but the scene does illustrate the limitations of a safety helmet. The scene that offended me was the climactic one between father and son, because it had already been done with other characters earlier on. What could have been moving — even shocking — was banal. I should have stayed home and watched The Hole again.

RC: My advice is to stay home and watch anything else. Watch paint dry ... the acting is better. And a further word of advice: Don't be fooled by James Cameron's name in the credits. Sanctum is no Avatar.

Gnomeward bound

► McAvoy stars as a lawn ornament in animated film Gnomeo and Juliet

James McAvoy is gearing up for a busy 2011 as he finishes up filming X-Men: First Class, in which he stars as mutant leader Charles Xavier.

But first, he's finding love on the wrong side of the fence, lending his voice to the romantic lead in the animated Gnomeo and Juliet, with its soundtrack of Elton John classics.

McAvoy sat down with Metro to talk about voiceover work, joining the X-Men and where Elton John truly belongs.

This is your first animated film?

Yeah. I did a puppet film a long time ago, but that was really just voicing over the work of a lot of Danish actors. Actually it's been really rewarding, artistically speaking. You get to go in and give it everything. And they don't ever really tell you no, and they never tell you whether it's bad or good. Well, they do say it's great a lot, but you kind of go, "You say, 'It's great' to everything. I'm not sure it can be true because I was pretty crummy in that last one."

Why do gnomes love Elton John music so much?

Well, I think his natural place is in the garden. It's a little-known fact about Elton John, but I think he's a very green-fingered gentleman. And maybe that's why. I thought we were going to have Crocodile Rock in the movie. I didn't think we were going to get anything else, so when I saw the film about a week and a half ago, I was really surprised to see that the entire musical concept for the film was taken from his back catalogue — and some new stuff as well.

You've got quite a supporting cast in this.

I think my favourite, I have to say, is Hulk Hogan. Having Hulk Hogan is hysterical. That's the moment that I laughed more than anything else. Ozzy Osbourne was fantastic. Michael Caine, Dame Maggie Smith — and Jason Statham! Oh my God, the Transporter! I actually raced the Transporter. Come on! Yeah, he doesn't mess with me, man. He knows where to draw the line. He knows he's punching above his weight.

How is X-Men: First Class going?

Really good. We've got about another two weeks filming here, and then I think we're done. And like all movies, it's a slog. We're just working 24-7. It's big. It's a big, big, big production. It's kind of nice to be on those things.

Are you prepared for the attention you'll get as part of a comic book franchise?

What, prepared to run away and hide? I'm very much prepared to run away and hide. I'm very much prepared not to publicize it at all and just run away and hide.

Backstage with Bieber

► What's Bieber really like? ► This multi-millionaire pop superstar loves his fans, misses Tim Hortons

RICHARD CROUSE
SCENE@METRO.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN TORONTO

Each time I interview someone really famous the questions start. How's Gwyneth's skin? How tall is Brad Pitt? I've even been asked what George Clooney smells like.

But since I hosted a press event with Justin Bieber to publicize his new movie Never Say Never on Tuesday in Toronto, the question that everyone has asked is much more basic: What's he like?

I won't presume to be able to answer that question after only spending 30 or so minutes with the pop prodigy, but I have a few observations based on our short time together.

Firstly, he's a high-energy kid. Backstage he was a bundle of energy. When he wasn't tweeting or sharing funny YouTube videos with his stylist Ryan, he was chatting and joking around.

"I hope you're a good translator," he joked as we walked to the stage. "Because I'm going to do the whole interview in Spanish." Then he burst into song, "Feliz Navidad..."

Onstage, he showed another aspect of his personality.

Less than two years ago he was playing to 40 fans at a water park in Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

Now he can sell out Madison Square Gardens in 22 minutes. But he hasn't forgotten the people who got him there — his fans.

"Where are my fans at?" he asked. "There's a lot of fans [outside]. Can we bring those fans in? I love you guys with the cameras and stuff, but what's the point if my fans aren't here?"

Also, he's as humble as a pop superstar can be. When I asked him when he first felt famous, he said: "I still don't really notice it. I'm still just a regular teenage boy, living his dream and having a lot of fun." Later I asked about household chores. "I do clean my room, especially when I'm home at my grandma's house."

Lastly, I learned he's still a proud Canadian, with a taste for a particular icy cocktail not served in his new hometown of Atlanta, Georgia. "I miss Tim Hortons," he said. "I miss Tim-my's! I miss my Ice Cap."

So what's Justin Bieber really like? Well, he's just like any other high-energy, fan-lovin' Canadian multi-millionaire 16-year-old pop superstar with a taste for chilled coffee.

Movie review

The Illusionist*Genre: AnimationDirector: Sylvain ChometStars: Jean-Claude Don-da, Elidh Rankin, Duncan MacNeill

Simply put, The Illusionist is a beautiful work of art and stunning proof of the aesthetic wonderment of traditional hand-drawn animation from director Sylvain Chomet (The Triplets Of Belleville). Based on an abandoned screenplay from the late Jacques Tati, the film tells the story of a magician whose antiquated art has been eclipsed by '60s pop and now struggles to afford a meagre lifestyle in Edinburgh. Vital viewing for any film fan. PHIL BROWN

'Are you dating ...?' 'No, mom'

► Aniston's family still hasn't learned to deal with the constant tabloid speculation

NED EHRBAR

SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

METRO WORLD NEWS IN LOS ANGELES

Jennifer Aniston is no stranger to fame, but there are still some aspects she hasn't gotten used to.

For instance, walking a red carpet still produces butterflies in her stomach.

"It's a fun excitement," she says.

"It's sort of like going on stage, you know? It's butterflies, it's nerves, it keeps it new. Hopefully that fear will never go away."

One thing she would like to go away, of course, would be all the tabloid speculation about her personal life — though that will probably outlast her pre-carpet jitters.

Still, Aniston has learned how to weather the gossip storms, even if her family hasn't.

"If I don't know that it's there, I'm just living my life, having fun doing my thing," she says. "The only way I'm really privy to it is when I have to field questions from my family members, because, for some reason, they still believe it's true."

And given how often she's on supermarket news-stands, that means a lot of concerned phonecalls.

"You stay as far away from it as possible and just try to deal with the emails and phone calls from your mother, saying, 'Are you adopting?'" Aniston says with an exasperated laugh.

"Are you dating somebody?" "No, mom." "Well, Aunt Jean thinks..." "No." "Are you getting married at Oprah's?" An $8 million wedding? "No. I told you, don't believe it."

Aniston would much rather people focus on her work, like her latest comedy, Just Go With It, in which she stars as the best friend and assistant to a plastic surgeon (Adam Sandler) who goes along with a harebrained scheme to pose as his soon-to-be ex-wife to assuage a new girlfriend's fears that he's not a philanderer.

The movie takes a few jabs at plastic surgery enthusiasts early on — and even features a quick cameo by Heidi Montag — but it also gave Aniston a chance to think about the practice and its implications.

"I think there's an extreme pressure on women and men to just stay young," she says.

"And the unfortunate thing is a lot of women who go too far end up looking a hell of a lot older than they actually are. It sort of has the reverse effect. So ... talk to me in 10 years."

Thanks to a much more A-list cameo, Aniston gets to spend a good amount of time in Just Go With It with Nicole Kidman, who pops up as her old sorority sister and nemesis.

But it wasn't Aniston's first exposure to Kidman.

"I had met her before and she was immediately disarming, so I knew how great of a girl she was," Aniston says. "I knew how funny she was. She pretty much can do anything."

But there was one thing Kidman couldn't do, it turns out: truly embody a mean girl.

"Nicole was so sweet. She would always feel really bad after she had to do something a little snarky to me," Aniston remembers.

"We'd cut and she'd just come over and be like, 'I'm so sorry.' It's so sweet."

White Stripes

- ▶ Meg and Jack White call it quits after 13 years
- ▶ Metro music reporter Pat Healy remembers the first time he saw them, ten years ago

SCENE@METRONOVS.CA

In an announcement on their website on Wednesday, the White Stripes let the world know that they are breaking up.

It is interesting how it has almost been a full decade since I first became aware of Meg and Jack White's band. In 2001, my friend and I had a fledgling record label and we wanted to scout out the SXSW conference in Austin, Texas, to see if it would be feasible to get the bands on our roster to play there. Granted, 2001 was the year that Napster pretty much put a thumbtack in our tires before we even got rolling, so the label fizzled out within a few years.

But while we were there I had the opportunity to take in some great acts, including the White Stripes.

I have often bragged that I saw them play at a cookout. That is true, but I don't always disclose that the yard was packed, because it usually elicits more of the desired, "Whaaaaa!!!!" if it sounds like a more intimate affair. Anyway, we were right in front because we had heard a lot of buzz about this duo.

Dressed in what would come to be their trademark red getups, Jack stepped up to the mic as twilight was setting in and said, "This is my sister, Meg" about the cute girl behind the drumkit that he had actually once been married to. Nobody had any idea at the time that it was just a gimmick.

What I remember most fondly from the evening was their take on Dolly Parton's Jolene and You're Pretty Good Looking, which is on YouTube if you search for "White Stripes — You're Pretty Good Looking — 2001/03/01."

As Meg and Jack said, the White Stripes belong to me now and I can do with it whatever I want. What I want to do is remember them like they are in that video: intense, rockin' and even a little bit cute in a gimmicky way. Rock on, White Stripes.

COMPLETELY USELESS, BUT FASCINATING

SCENE@METRONOVS.CA

In addition to writing this column every Friday, I also have to write six long-form radio programs, ten short-form radio features and a couple of dozen blog entries. That works out to about 20,000 words a week or the equivalent of a complete novel every five weeks. In the course of the ongoing research, I run across some amazing but utterly useless information. Here are a dozen of my favourites.

1. William Willet, the man responsible for pushing the UK and the British Empire into adopting daylight saving time is the great-great-grandfather of Cold-play singer Chris Martin.

2. In 2002, some well-funded but obviously very bored Austrian psychologists determined that cats tend to prefer music with deep bass and fast beats like heavy electronic music or house. They also hate guitar solos and songs with lots of high frequencies.

3. The first intentional use of the F-word in a song can be found in CIA Man by the Fugs from 1965.

4. When Apple constructed an iPod prototype in 2001, the first track engineers ripped from CD and transferred to the device was Groove Jet by an Italian DJ who goes by the name Spiller.

5. While a vinyl album sounds as good as a 7-inch single, audio quality on an LP degrades slightly as the needle moves towards the centre.

6. Jack White was headed to a seminary to study to become a priest when he discovered he couldn't bring his guitar amp. So he dropped out.

7. The first video ever shown on MTV was Video Killed the Radio Star. The second was You'd Better Run by Pat Benetar.

8. The album with the longest title in history is a 2007 release by a Belgian outfit called Soulwax. It's 103 words long, beating out Fiona Apple's old record of 90 words.

9. Most standard toilets flush in the key of E-flat. I have no idea who felt the need to figure this out.

10. Leo Fender, the guy who invented and marketed both the iconic Stratocaster and Telecaster guitars, couldn't play the guitar himself.

11. According to researched sales data, the best-selling musical instrument in history is the harmonica.

12. James Lilja, the original drummer for the Offspring, left the band in 1987 and went on to become a successful gynecologist.

There. Don't you feel smarter?

Cold War Kids get serious

The four guys in Cold War Kids came to a decision a few years back: It's time to go all in or get out.

The Long Beach, Calif., rockers had carved out a nice little niche over their first two albums using a do-it-yourself, punk-rock attitude to earn a fervent fan base and some buzz in the wider music community. But after their last album disappointed them in some ways, they realized it was time to stop treating the band like a hobby.

"We don't want to lose the vibe we have, but we need to blossom and branch out or we're pretty much going to be putting out the same record, you know, like a lot of bands do," bassist Matt Maust said. "There's nothing wrong with that, but we don't want to do that. I love a lot of bands for that, but we don't want to be one of those bands right now."

In interviews during a stop at Jack White's Third Man Records in Nashville and by phone, Maust and lead singer Nathan Willett painted the picture of a band that found itself at an existential crossroads as it prepared for its third album, Mine Is Yours, out last week.

Their previous album, 2008's dark Loyalty to Loyalty, sold more copies than the band's shiny 2006 breakthrough, Robbers and Cowards, but it wasn't met with the same kind of fervour.

What the band had at that point was fun. But it just didn't feel important. Or permanent.

In some ways, the process that produced the band's latest album, Mine Is Yours, shows the Kids have grown up and realized they could have a future in music, not just a youthful dalliance that peters out over time. Maust and Willett have both edged into their 30s and Willett and guitarist Jonnie Russell have started families.

Willett remembers shrugging his way through interviews for "Loyalty." He'd grown up on a steady diet of bands like Fugazi and the "screw you" attitude of the Southern California, do-it-yourself punk and hardcore scenes, and affected a similarly "so what?" outlook when interviewers brought up silly things like expectations.

It just wasn't cool to want a ... career. Or was it?

"I realized I had huge desires and ambitions for our band, and I kind of acted like I hadn't before, so a lot of that is playing into this record," Willett said. "I think that this album, Mine Is Yours — I hope that it opens a lot of doors for us, just in terms of more artists we can work with, more opportunities to record. I think it just showed us we are capable of a lot more."

'This guy is an actor?'

► Bored to Death's Jason Schwartzman talks TV, becoming a dad and wanting to be adopted by Ted Danson

► Bored to Death star Jason Schwartzman

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONews.CA

After making a name for himself in film, Jonathan Schwartzman has found a surprisingly comfortable home on TV in HBO's Bored to Death, where he channels the shows creator, Jonathan Ames, to play a down-on-his-luck Brooklyn novelist who becomes an unlicensed private investigator.

How as it been coming back to Bored to Death for a second season?

Fun. I've worked with the same directors a couple of times, and I've sometimes worked with an actor who I've worked with before, but I've never worked playing the same character. And it's a really great experience, personally, for someone like me. I get a little bit embarrassed sometimes, especially the first days of any job. It's embarrassing to say your lines. I just think about the crew. Like, are the crew going, "This guy is an actor?" But the second season, the same crew, they have already seen you be terrible, so there's really nothing to be afraid of anymore.

Does that means you're in it for the long run?

I would like to be, yeah. Have you heard something else?

How much have your life and career changed since you've become a father?

Well, I've just become a father. I'm sure there are other people who have been fathers for longer that would know. I mean, it's so cheesy to talk about. My wife and I, it's just the two of us trying to make our child feel safe.

How are you going to manage shooting and having a family at home?

That is going to be fun, when we go to work. That's going to be a lot of roses for my wife and a lot of love letters and, like, surprises. That's going to be a lot of creativity on my part just trying to make my wife think I'm amazing. You look at someone like Matt Damon, who has four girls and he makes, like, a hundred amazing movies a year. I'm not in a position to talk about how hard it is. We just have a little baby, so at least I know where this one is.

Working with co-stars like Ted Danson and Zach Galifianakis...as much fun as it sounds?

It is. Not to take your question and make it negative, but I have worked before on situations where it wasn't fun, where you just see someone acting in a way that just seems to be a little bit rude. And especially at the end of 20 hours, you really don't like certain people if you already didn't like them, because you just feels like, "OK, I can't fake this anymore." So to be able to work with Ted and Zach and have this experience where we're all getting along so well, I'm so thankful for it. And they're so up for trying things. Sometimes you can work with people who don't want to keep doing another take. They're just like, "Come on, we got it. I have a dinner reservation." But Ted and Zach want to work, and they just want to keep going as long as we feel that we need to. Ted, by the way, I want him to legally become my actual father.

No ordinary TV show

► Michael Chiklis

SCENE@METRONWS.CA

Michael Chiklis is back on television screens with No Ordinary Family, starring as a father or two who, along with his wife and kids, develops superpowers after a freak accident. And after years on the gritty cable drama The Shield, Chiklis is happy to be on a show his kids can watch. "One of the big reasons for taking this job is, you know, my poor 11-year-old really doubted that I was even an actor," he says with a laugh.

But pleasing a broader audience has presented unexpected challenges. "Doing a show that is for a broad audience is the hardest thing I've ever attempted because, you know, we live in a time where everything is broken into a niche entertainment," he explains. "With The Shield, we were like, 'If you watch, fine.' But with this show, here's the challenge: You go too dark, you lose the family. You go too light, you lose the young men. You get adults eye-rolling and stuff like that. So then if you don't go too far in any directions, you just become nothing, mediocre."

Given the series' premise of a family of superheroes, Chiklis says there have been comparisons between the show and Pixar's animated film, The Incredibles, something the actor appreciates. But there are differences. "That's one less-than-two-hour movie. It took seven years to make," he says. "They could tweak every moment, every nuance, every flick of the eyebrow, everything in that movie, and it's an anime on top of it. They're not bound by gravity or anything else, and we are shooting a live version of it every nine working days."

No Ordinary Family's Autumn Reeser:

► Reeser can relate to her Comic-Con attending character. "I have been to Comic-Con. It was insane," she says. "My husband is into a lot of that, too, and we're both gamers. We walked around and checked out a bunch of stuff that we wanted to see, but it was definitely overwhelming for me. It was huge. Just being around like that many people was a lot, but the costumes were awesome."

Kidman spills on marriage to Cruise

► Admitting that being a wife to Tom was more than she'd bargained for Nicole Kidman is opening up about her marriage to Tom Cruise and the state her split from her first husband left her in.

"I was really damaged and not sure whether (love and marriage) was ever going to happen again to me," she tells Marie Claire magazine. She admits that being Cruise's wife turned out to be more than she'd bargained for.

"I was never seeking to be a celebrity," she says. "But I was prepared to do that for love." ● METRO

The couple plans to wed in July. Moss reportedly joked to friends that she will be the most famous Kate to get married in 2011, taking a swipe at Prince William's fiancée, Kate Middleton.

His latest stunt was a doozy. While Barbie dined atop the CN Tower with a girlfriend, Ken had an airplane fly by several times pulling a banner that read: 'Barbie, we were made for each other.'

Ken was spotted at the base of the tower looking hopeful. And, an unnamed source said Barbie's face lit up immediately and she couldn't stop smiling all night.

Beer Cocktails

"Beer as an ingredient can offer such a variety of flavours," says Jacob Grier, a drinks blogger.

Grier was introduced to the beer cocktail after seeing Canadian beer writer Stephen Beaumont concoct some.

When mixing beers with spirits, it's vital to look for harmony, like the fruitiness of rums and most IPAs, or the aromatics of some blond ales, says Beaumont.

Guacamole Salsa Dip

Fresh ripe avocados make a creamy dip that is perfect for dipping crunchy tortilla chips into. Need some added colour? Try veggies to dip alongside.

Ingredients:

- 2 ripe avocados
- ½ cup (125 mL) hummus
- ½ cup (125 mL) salsa
- 1 jalapeño pepper, seeded and minced
- 1 tbsp (15 mL) lime juice
- ¼ tsp (1 mL) salt
- Chopped fresh coriander

Preparation:

- 1 In large bowl, using a potato masher, mash avocado until smooth. Stir in hummus, salsa, jalapeño, lime juice and salt. Sprinkle with coriander, if using.

- 2 Serve with tortilla chips or veggies

Chili Pizza

I decided to take the two things most people like to eat while watching and enjoying the Super Bowl and combine them into one.

Preparation:

- 1 In a skillet, heat oil over medium heat and cook onion and garlic for about 3 minutes or until softened. Add beef, chili powder, oregano and cumin and cook, breaking up meat until browned. Add tomatoes, red pepper, beans and salt and cook about 5 minutes. Set aside.

- 2 Roll out pizza dough to 14 inch (35 cm) circle and place on pizza pan. In a bowl, combine pizza sauce and cayenne. Spread over dough. Sprinkle with chili mix and cheese.

- 3 Bake in centre of 400 F (200 C) oven for about 25 minutes or until cheese is melted and crust is golden.

Battle of the brews

PETER ROCKWELL

I have a confession. This Super Bowl Sunday, I'll be drinking wine as I watch the big game. That makes me one of a small minority of fans because the day belongs to beer.

And why shouldn't it? With all due respect to the ladies, beer is a perfect companion for guy food.

Whether it be nachos smothered in cheese and sprinkled with jalapeño peppers, bowls of potato chips or greasy takeout pizza: The clean, thirst-quenching taste and refreshing effervescence of a good brew helps wash it all down better than any wine.

That said, though Pittsburgh and Green Bay may be fighting it out on the field, this Sunday is really a battle of the beers.

While Budweiser, Bud Light and Coors Light will spend millions on commercials — and no doubt be the guests of honour at most Super Bowl parties — there is so more to American suds.

Anchor Steam (6 x 355 mL, $12.50 - $13.55; 1 x 355 mL, $2.99) from San Francisco's Anchor Steam Brewery is an iconic West Coast ale with a

Maurice way past Leafs stint

► Toronto has gotten worse since former coach joined Hurricanes

There are no longer any regrets for Paul Maurice.

When the Carolina Hurricanes coach returns to the Air Canada Centre, he's able to focus on the positive memories from his two seasons behind the Maple Leafs bench.

"I think I enjoy them a lot more now," Maurice said Thursday before the Hurricanes faced Toronto. "I look back at my time here and the friendships you make. The Toronto Maple Leafs, it's still one of the best jobs in hockey — as long you're winning. We didn't do enough of it to stick around longer."

As it turns out, Maurice moved on to better things. The Hurricanes made a run to the Eastern Conference final after he rejoined the organization in 2009 and he's currently leading a young team that is in the thick of the playoff chase.

The Maple Leafs, meanwhile, have never come close to the post-season and the organization was totally overhauled. Only one player currently with the team was here for the 2007-08 season under Maurice — and Tomas Kaberle's tenure appears to be nearing its end.

Maurice doesn't think things would be much different if he had not been fired.

"I'm not sure having stayed it would have been the continued upswing," he said.

"I don't look back at my time in Toronto any more and say, 'I wish it hadn't happened.' I'm clearly better for the experience."

HURRICANES COACH PAUL MAURICE

The Hurricanes and Maple Leafs couldn't be more different.

Carolina GM Jim Rutherford has been on the job since the franchise moved south in 1997 and he's fostered an unparalleled culture of loyalty.

There has also been a recent trend of acquiring former Leafs and, perhaps not coincidentally, many of them had previously played under Maurice: Forward Jiri Tlustý, defencemen Ian White and Jay Harrison, and goaltender Justin Pogge.

Even though Maurice celebrated his 44th birthday last week, he has spent 14 seasons as a head coach in the NHL. He took university business classes after getting fired by the Maple Leafs, but has no plans for another career.

"I think as you get older, winning becomes even more important to you," he said. "You want it more. I like this good young team, I'd like to be part of the development of the team and part of the success after."

Griffin gets all-star nod with Boston's big four

Blake Griffin is going to his first NBA all-star game while Kevin Garnett matched an NBA record Thursday with his 14th straight selection as one of a record-tying four Boston Celtics headed for the mid-season event.

Rajon Rondo, Paul Pierce and Ray Allen will accompany Garnett, who tied Jerry West, Shaquille O'Neal and Karl Malone for the most consecutive selections. The Celtics joined the 2006 Detroit Pistons as the only teams to have four players picked as reserves by the coaches.

Griffin, the rookie of the year favourite of the Clippers, will be playing on his home floor in the Feb. 20 game at Staples Center. Chris Bosh will go to Los Angeles with Miami teammates LeBron James and Dwyane Wade.

Image fix won't be easy for QB Big job

► Marketing experts say Steelers quarterback Ben Roethlisberger will need more than a Super Bowl win on Sunday to revive his tarnished reputation.

By Sunday night, Ben Roethlisberger could be in rarefied company as a three-time Super Bowl-winning quarterback.

Yet even if he joins the likes of superstar Tom Brady and Hall of Famer Troy Aikman, marketing experts say the Steelers QB probably won't overcome his off-the-field notoriety — including two sexual assault accusations — and pick up the flurry of endorsements NFL champs typically enjoy.

"You don't build back trust with a one-game performance, even if it's the Super Bowl," said Bill Glenn, senior vice-president of the Dallas-based sports-business firm The Marketing Arm. "I'd be surprised if there's a long line outside his agent's office even if he wins MVP."

Roethlisberger has had a minimal presence in advertising since he was accused in March of sexually assaulting a 20-year-old college student — the second time since 2008 that he faced assault allegations. Georgia authorities declined to bring charges, but he received a four-game suspension at the start of this season for violating the NFL's personal conduct policy.

His sturdy play since his return has won back the hearts of some Pittsburgh fans who had soured on him. But nationally, according to marketing experts, his image remains tarnished.

"I want to be the guy people look up to. I want to be that kind of husband, father and grandfather someday if I am lucky enough."

BEN ROETHLISBERGER

"The best thing Mr. Roethlisberger can do is have a very quiet week off the field and a very loud week on the field," said Kevin Adler, CEO of the Chicago-based sports consulting firm Engage Marketing.

"With a good game and a quiet off-season, there's an opportunity to develop a maturation of his brand in the future."

The challenge facing Roethlisberger is starkly illustrated in the so-called N-Scores, which the Nielsen Co. compiles to rate athletes' endorsement potential based on their appeal, name recognition and other factors. His score has plummeted from above 140 in 2008 to 24 in the wake of the assault cases; by comparison, Green Bay quarterback Aaron Rodgers' score is 39 and Peyton Manning's is 262.

John Sweeney, a professor of sports communication at the University of North Carolina's journalism school, noted that Roethlisberger — even pre-scandal — was never in Manning's league as a pitchman.

He won deals to represent a barbecue sauce, a Pittsburgh auto dealership and a beef jerky brand, although that company dropped him last year. He also remains on the roster of athletes signed by Nike to wear its gear, although Nike confirmed it hasn't used him in recent advertisements.

"When people talk about marketability with Ben, how far is he going to fall anyway?" Sweeney asked. "He's not a huge player in the huge sponsorship market, so there's not as much that's threatened."

Roethlisberger himself, during the run-up to Sunday's game, has tried to deflect talk about his suspension and off-field problems.

His agent, Ryan Tollner, didn't respond to a request for comment on the marketability issue, made through his firm, Irvine, Calif.-based Rep 1 Sports Group.

The firm's website says the marketing portfolio assembled by Tollner for Roethlisberger "generates millions of dollars per year, with creative deals such as Big Ben's BBQ Sauces, Big Ben's Beef Jerky, a T-shirt campaign, memorabilia arrangement and profitable website." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Josh, I can't get enough of you. I want to spend every moment with you. The last three years have been amazing. Kiss kiss love love joshypoo. MYSELF

Boo, I can't wait until we're together again. I miss you so much! You are the best thing that ever happened to me. I'll love you forever! Your hunny bunny, ANDREA

Babylove, today doesn't hold any particular significance for us...but I thought I'd let you know that everyday is a special occasion as long as your mine! Kiss Yours, as always, MATT

dear Julia, you are the love of my life, i love you with all my heart and soul, i know i have being a fool i hope u can find it in your heart to forgive me. i want to spend the rest of my life with you BOULIE

Today's horoscope

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 Not everything in life can be explained logically and what happens today will most likely make you question a belief you have always taken for granted. That's good: it's limiting to think you know it all.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 The more others complain about what you are doing, the more you will keep on doing it. You would think by now they might have worked out that the one thing you don't say to Taurus is "cannot".

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 You like surprises, especially when you're the one calling the shots, and what you do over the next 24 hours is clearly designed to amaze others.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 These may be anxious times for you, but if you stand back from your life and see it as a whole, rather than just focus on individual things that are going wrong, you will see that you are still making progress.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 23 Because you like to make up your mind quickly, it annoys you when others dither over what should be a simple decision. Today, you'll be the one who keeps everyone else waiting.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24-Sept. 22 Approach a chore you have to do with energy. Not only will you make a good job of it, which will do your reputation no harm at all, but you may discover a hidden talent.

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca ♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 Not everything will work out the way you expect it to today but, it won't worry you in the slightest. You'll just get on and do something else.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Certain people may be leaving out facts and figures that could affect the decisions you make today, so be sure you know what is going on before putting pen to paper. Listen to your Scorpio intuition.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 Forget about trivial matters and focus only on the big issues today. Socially, this should be a day to remember but you'll enjoy it more if you avoid people whose interests are superficial.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 Partners and colleagues will be touchy over the next 24 hours, so watch what you say. Fortunately, as Venus moves into your birth sign today you'll want to create harmony.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 The Sun's union with Mars in your sign will give you energy today. You won't be short of things to expend it on, either. Others will come to you for advice and assistance and you'll go out of your way to help.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 Keep your innermost secrets to yourself today, no matter how tempted you may be to let a friend or family member in on what you've been up to.
